

OF INTEREST TO STOCKMEN.

A POOR QUALITY OF CATTLE NOW COMING TO MARKET.

Live Cattle Cannot Be Successfully Shipped From Australia and New Zealand to the United Kingdom—A Card to the Public.

The discouraging condition of the cattle market is nothing new for this time of year. These are days of "slippery beef," when packers buy many cattle under a kind of protest and only because they are here. Many of the cattle now coming are of a blood more or less with gray, and while looking well in the pens, kill out badly and make tough and insipid meat. It is, in fact, rather than the want of demand, that is causing the demoralization in the market. And until the grass becomes stronger and more nutritious cattle prices may be expected to be unsettled and unsatisfactory.

The London Live Stock Journal says the shipment of live cattle from Australia and New Zealand to the United Kingdom can only be done to any great extent, at the best of the voyage, with its changes from torrid to temperate weather, and perhaps a touch of Arctic cold, is too trying on the cattle to permit of them making the trip successfully.

"To Our Friends and Patrons." Having purchased Mr. Tamm's interest, as stated in the foregoing, we wish to say to our many friends that we will be found at the same old stand, ready to render the same prompt and reliable service as heretofore.

Mr. Hopkins will have charge of the cattle department. Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department. Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Johnson & Crippen, Gove county, Kas., had in cattle yesterday.

W. L. Green, Lincoln, T. T., was here yesterday with cattle. He says they have good grass now and plenty of water and cattle are doing fairly well.

Ray & Fuller, White, Tex., were yesterday with cattle.

J. B. Wainwright, T. T., was in yesterday with cattle.

E. Burton, Winston, Mo., had in hogs yesterday.

R. M. DeWolfe, Jefferson county, Kas., came in with hogs yesterday.

J. K. Fenton, Lancaster, Kas., was here yesterday with hogs.

H. Williams, Latham, Neb., was at the yards yesterday with cattle and hogs.

N. L. Nelson, Moray, Kas., was in yesterday with cattle. He reports splendid rains and says corn looks fine.

Joe Miller and G. J. Booth, Johnson, Tex., were up yesterday with cattle.

B. T. Hoff, Norman, O. T., had in cattle yesterday.

Dorton & Ralph, Orrick, Mo., came in yesterday with cattle and hogs.

A. C. McKinney, Haddam, Kas., was here yesterday with hogs.

C. W. Astle, Haven, Kas., was on the yards yesterday with hogs.

De Garmo & Phillips, Carl Junction, Mo., were in yesterday with hogs.

J. C. Todd, Leavenworth, Kas., was at the yards yesterday with hogs.

D. K. Lord, Protection, Kas., had in cattle yesterday.

ONCE A MISSOURIAN.

Mr. H. H. Younce of Shreveport, La., Visits Scene of His Earlier Years.

Mr. H. H. Younce of Shreveport, La., was at the "Cotton House" last night. Younce was formerly a Missouriian and lived during his boyhood years at Waverly, Lafayette county, where he was born. He was a war hero, and became interested in the country, located. He was attracted to that part of the country by the fact of his brothers locating there after the surrender of the Confederacy.

Mr. Younce passed through the city yesterday morning, but the first place he stopped was Waverly, to visit some of the old neighbors, and incidentally to call upon one of his brothers who had been brought to Waverly by his father over seventy years ago.

In the city he was met by some of his old friends, and he was very much interested in the progress of the city.

He is the owner of the water works of Shreveport, and he is very much interested in the progress of the city.

He is the owner of the water works of Shreveport, and he is very much interested in the progress of the city.

He is the owner of the water works of Shreveport, and he is very much interested in the progress of the city.

How is Your Blood?

If it is poor and thin and lacking in the number and quality of those red corpuscles, you are in danger of sickness from disease germs and enervating effect of warm weather. Purify your blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The great blood purifier, which has proved its merit by a record of cures unequalled in medical history. With pure, rich blood you will be well and strong. Do not neglect this important matter, take Hood's Sarsaparilla now.

Hood's Pills are tasteless, mild, effective. All druggists.

MEETING ENDED.

The Western Authors and Artists' Club Meets Officially, Finishes Its Business and Adjourns.

The second day's session of the Western Authors and Artists' Club's annual meeting began with the election of officers yesterday.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

Mr. J. H. Hill, who has been with the firm for many years, and who has been in charge of the stock department, will have charge of the stock department.

ANOTHER GANG SCHEME.

J. B. Keshlar's Attorney Seeking to Prevent William M. Sloan's Contest Case Being Tried in the Circuit Court.

The attorneys for J. B. Keshlar in the Sloan-Keshlar contest case have carried the case to the state supreme court, and yesterday Judge Slover, before whom the case was to have been tried next Monday, was served with a writ from the supreme court prohibiting him from trying the case and directing him to appear before the supreme court on Tuesday, June 18, and show why the writ of prohibition should not be made permanent.

The technicality upon which the case was carried up to the supreme court is based on a law of 1871, which created the office of county marshal and provided that all contest cases affecting the office were to be tried in the circuit court.

If this point of law is sustained the circuit court will have no jurisdiction, and the case will probably be ended, as it will be too late for Sloan to take the proceedings in the circuit court.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court. The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

THE DOLEFUL PROPHECIES.

They Have Not Yet Threatened the Country With Cholera and Fever.

It is not apparent, so far, that this is going to be an especially sickly summer. The jobs of cholera, and the threat of pestilence, cholera and deadly fevers, have been silent. Yet it cannot be denied that the summer heat always brings out more or less malaria, particularly in districts where the earth is torn up or drainage is imperfect.

Malaria attacks the weak and unweary, but gives the hearty, well-toned, buoyant system a little breeze. Experience has shown that the best defense against it is that sound and wholesome stimulant, Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Mothers not only take it themselves at the first chill or tremor, but they give it to their children. The effect is always the same.

At once the vital force is so quickened and all the bodily functions so stirred, that malaria is really shaken off. All who know the splendid properties of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regard it as the best of preventives. It is never more in demand than during the hot months, when a prompt and judicious stimulus may avert a long and dangerous attack of sickness.

Any malarial trouble sticks and clings like leeches to the system, and it is not to have it at all. There is no danger of the least departure from normal condition, if met by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

The technicality upon which the case was carried up to the supreme court is based on a law of 1871, which created the office of county marshal and provided that all contest cases affecting the office were to be tried in the circuit court.

If this point of law is sustained the circuit court will have no jurisdiction, and the case will probably be ended, as it will be too late for Sloan to take the proceedings in the circuit court.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

It is simply a scheme of the Keshlar faction to delay the trial, as they know it is going against them.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.

The same motion was argued before Judge Slover some time ago by the lawyers for Keshlar, and he overruled the motion, thus decreeing that they were wrong in their contention.

A DOUBLE STAR ATTRACTION.

Washington Park Offers Satisfactory, the Equilibrium, and Herdforth, the Traps.

While the patrons of Washington park may wonder how the management is going to provide a better attraction for next week than was offered the present week, the great juggler, the promoter, is made that it shall be done, and the Washington park management always keeps its promises, as the patrons well know. There will not only be a star attraction next week, but it will be a double attraction of the finest kind. One of the attractions will be the young Russian hand balancer and equilibrist, who has been creating such a profound sensation wherever he has exhibited in this country, and the other will be Herdforth, the famous "Earth" company last year, and his phenomenal work caused him to be the most talked about feature of the show.

Herdforth is a man of the world, and the finest man in his line and needs no words of praise. He does feats on the Porree trapeze which others would not think of attempting and does them easily. Both these stars will open up a Washington park next Sunday afternoon, and will give exhibitions both afternoon and evening for the next week.

Schafer, the great juggler, closes his engagement at the park to-night, and the two exhibitions will be the last opportunity to witness his wonderful work.

The technicality upon which the case was carried up to the supreme court is based on a law of 1871, which created the office of county marshal and provided that all contest cases affecting the office were to be tried in the circuit court.

If this point of law is sustained the circuit court will have no jurisdiction, and the case will probably be ended, as it will be too late for Sloan to take the proceedings in the circuit court.

The attorneys for Sloan contend that the position of the Keshlar faction will not be sustained, and the probative writ will not be made permanent. They claim that the law of 1871 referred to by the supreme court, far as it affects the contest for the marshalship, and provides that cases of that kind may be brought in the circuit court.